

BELMONT DEMOCRACY.

The County Convention Meets at St. Clairsville

AND NOMINATES THE FULL TICKET.

The Quintessence of Gall Oozes Out All Over the Address—The List of Names of Those Put Up for the Honor of Being Beaten by Good Republicans—Mr. Lawrence Makes a Speech.

REPRESENTATIVE—GEORGE LINN.
PROBATE JUDGE—J. W. LAUGHLIN.
TREASURER—EVANS DERMOTT.
PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—A. W. KENNON.
COMMISSIONER—GEORGE W. YOST.
INFIRMARY DIRECTOR—JAMES TAYLOR.

The above is the list of Democrats named by the Belmont county convention at St. Clairsville yesterday to be beaten for the respective county offices this fall.

R. C. Meyer called the convention to order, and introduced Rev. Robert Alexander, who made an appropriate prayer. Albert Lawrence, esq., was announced as temporary chairman, and Editors D. H. Milligan and W. C. Warner as secretaries.

Mr. Lawrence, on taking the chair, congratulated the convention upon the fact that their party is in full power for the first time within the last thirty years. He noted the Republicans for crying "calamity" after their defeat, and attributed the present embarrassment to the lack of confidence thus created. He referred to the failure of ex-Governor Foster, which will, if it can be used, be worked in as a campaign cry.

Proceeding, the speaker charged the McKinley bill with the low price of wool and wheat. He scored the last general assembly for "reckless extravagance." The expense incurred by that body in attending the funeral of ex-President R. B. Hayes was presented as a convincing fact.

The county indebtedness was referred to as an evidence of the maladministration of the Republicans. The Pipe creek pike matter was also drawn on.

The speaker omitted to state that one of the two members of the board granting the order was a Democrat and upon a contest properly made before the board the improvements could have been defeated. The speech was a good one from a partisan standpoint. The allusions to victory did not evoke the expected enthusiasm. Upon the conclusion of his address there was a call of delegations for committees and the usual committees were appointed. At this point Marion Hoffman, of Bellaire, presented a resolution to the effect that the law authorizing should be repealed and that provision be made for separate schools for colored children, and that the delegates to the state convention be instructed to have the substance of the resolution inserted in the state platform.

The afternoon session met at 1 p. m., and after some cheering up by the band the chairman called for order.

The temporary organization was made permanent. Mr. Lawrence then addressed the convention after the style of his morning speech. He referred to an article, "The Encouraging Outlook," in the INTELLIGENCER of July 25, and said such an article in such a prominent daily meant that the Republicans would have to stop the cry of calamity.

The committee on resolutions, report was read, reaffirming the principles of the Chicago platform of 1892. They endorsed President Cleveland's calling an extra session of Congress.

The committee on delegates to the state convention reported the following delegates: E. J. Steger, R. C. Meyer, Wilbur Smith, J. B. Darragh, J. L. McCaffrey, D. C. Creamer, W. A. Fenton, George Linn, J. W. Terrill, W. M. Lupton, John A. Anderson and Dr. W. V. Anderson.

The next thing in order was the presenting of the names for nomination for representative.

Han Glass, of Flushing, presented the name of George Linn, of Richland. A. C. Darragh, nominated Leonard Twine, of Goshen.

The precincts were called and George Linn received 53 and Twine 29 votes.

Mr. Linn was declared the nominee, and was called out to address the convention. His speech created little enthusiasm. One remark he made was: "If the Democrats give me their hearty support I will be the next representative of Belmont county."

The nomination for

came nearly going without a name.

R. C. Meyer named Hon. J. W. Laughlin, of Warren, who instantly declined.

The precincts were called again. George C. McKee, of Bridgeport, was nominated, and also declined. Then R. C. Meyer renominated Laughlin, who was nominated by acclamation.

Major Laughlin was called on to address the convention. He stated that he knew what it was to be defeated, as he had been a candidate three times on the Democratic ticket, but he was willing to make one more canvass for the good of the party.

The talk about defeat seemed to have a discouraging effect, so that but one name was mentioned for treasurer—Evans Dermott, who was nominated by acclamation. His speech made the acclamations tired and sorry that they were of one mind.

The fight for prosecuting attorney had been warm. W. W. Campbell and A. W. Kennon were placed in nomination. Mr. Campbell, realizing that the compromise made as to the delegates from his place had been a serious mistake, withdrew, and Kennon was nominated by acclamation. He made the best speech of the day, for the reason he didn't undertake to say much for the party.

George W. Yost, David Lyle and Henry Frazier were nominated for county commissioners. Yost was nominated on the first ballot. The others were farmers and not wanted.

Joseph Taylor was nominated for infirmary director.

On motion of D. H. Milligan the delegates to the state convention were instructed to support John J. Lentz for governor.

The ticket as made is the weakest ever presented by the party.

NOTES.

The nomination of Kennon was a dead shot at the "Gazelle ring."

The names of Ex-Governor Campbell and Senator Brice were not mentioned.

R. J. Alexander, who "wanted something" from the administration, was not present.

The stage decorations consisted of red, white and blue bunting, Cleveland's and Thurman's pictures.

R. C. Meyer was selected chairman of the central committee. St. Clairsville made a fight for the chairmanship, but came out loser again.

Ice cold water kept in a whisky barrel was passed through the audience by small boys; the flavor of the barrel aided to slake the Democratic thirst.

The announcement that Twine was a member of the Farmers' Alliance fell flat. His unsuspecting supporter did not know that Mr. Linn's name had been written on the slate.

The convention presented a fairly creditable appearance. The Maynard and Uniontown cornet bands furnished good music. The presiding officer and secretary performed their duties in a highly creditable manner.

Linn falls from the Pennsylvania region of Guernsey county. He has served his party as a small office holder ever since he has been in the county. It fair to the convention to say that he would not have been nominated if his election had been considered a possibility.

It is believed that fifty or more admiring friends will accompany the Independents. They go on the Ohio River road and will leave Wheeling at 6:45 a. m., fast time. For the accommodation of the party the electrical railway will run two cars from Martin's Ferry to Wheeling, leaving the Bayless house at 6 o'clock sharp.

One of the prettiest and healthiest of the small towns of Ohio is Granville. As an educational centre Granville is unsurpassed, as it has three large educational institutions within its borders, aggregating over 500 students. Granville Academy not only prepares a student for the University, but also furnishes a complete academic course, and gives diplomas to graduates. Among the new improvements added this year are a $40,000 gymnasium hall, of forty-four elegant rooms, $25,000 academy hall, and $10,000 of the latest apparatus, also a splendid athletic park.
